Study courses to progress

WORKERS are urged to return to study because of the economic bounceback and improved job market.

Edinburgh Business School is offering three scholarships, valued at $18,000 each, for workers to complete a Master of Business Studies and help them increase their chances of promotion.

Australasia general manager Malcolm Kinns said workers who wanted to move from middle management to senior executive positions this year would need to demonstrate academic qualifications as well as professional experience.

"MBA enrolments at EBS increased by 325 per cent in the past two years and inquiries so far in 2010 indicate that a strengthening economy and job market are prompting more to consider hitting the books in 2010," he said.

Applications close on May 1 and further details are available by visiting the website www.ebsglobal.com.au.
